Maciej Nowicki

An architectural career between Poland, America and India

From 27 November 2012 until 15 February 2013

Theme The latest exhibition in the Architektur im Ringturm series organised by Wiener Städtische Versicherungsverein, main shareholder of Vienna Insurance Group, spotlights the work of Polish architect Maciej Nowicki using a selection of photos and charts. Nowicki is regarded as one of the leading protagonists of Polish architecture in the late interwar- and early postwar years. He studied art in Krakow and architecture in Warsaw. After his emigration to the USA Nowicki collaborated with Le Corbusier and Oscar Niemeyer on the design of the UN Headquarters in New York, and was also involved in the construction of the J.S. Dorton Arena, one of the most innovative stadiums in the postwar period. Besides Nowicki's works, the exhibition also sheds light on his theoretical viewpoint and the thinking behind his creations.
